WANT SETTLEMENT

CASE OF IDA LABEL VS. CHESTER BENNETT MAY BE DISMISSED.

OTHER SUITS DEFERRED

Case of Curfman Brothers vs. F. M. Ryan Settled, According to Attorneys—Court Takes Recess.

The case of Ida Label vs. Chester Bennett, for damages, which was set for trial today, was not called this morning, as efforts are being made for a settlement. It was announced this morning that while the terms of settlement had not been agreed on, yet a settlement would probably be accepted.

This case promised one of the sensational trials at this term of court. The plaintiff charges the defendant with being the father of her child.

The suit of M. P. Headlee vs. Thomas Cain, on a note, was up in circuit court this morning before a jury composed of Ernest McLaughlin, W. C. Herbert, L. C. Foreman, Dan Groves, Ed Goodpasture, W. P. Lamb, Ben Booher, J. H. Cooper, Ben Yeager, James Brady, J. W. Harman and J. D. Rice. After the commencement of this case the court on its own motion, with counsels for both sides objecting, set aside the cause for trial at this term and continued same because of the evidence submitted.

In the case of W. B. Browning vs. R. B. Young, in a motion for a new trial, the court on its own motion granted a new trial in this case on the grounds that the verdict was contrary to the evidence.

Court took a recess until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. The case of Curfman Bros. vs. F. M. Ryan et al., set for trial for tomorrow, has been settled, so the attorneys for the defendants announced today.

WILL BE SIMPLE AFFAIR

President Wilson's Inauguration to Be Attended With as Little Ceremony as Possible.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Washington, Nov. 21.—President Wilson's second inauguration will be a comparatively simple affair. While he has not discussed details with his advisers, he is known to desire that there should be as little ceremony as possible.

It is accepted as certain by officials that there will be no inaugural ball, in spite of the hope of Washington citizens for such an event.

In addition to the president's opposition to elaborate ceremony at his inauguration in 1913, officials point to the recent death of his sister, Mrs. Anne Howe, the fact that March 4 falls on Sunday next year, and the prospect that the European war will still be in progress next March as reasons why the inaugural exercises will be as simple as possible.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Red Oak, Ia., Nov. 21.—Mrs. Vina Thompkins of Marshalltown, Iowa, took the stand yesterday in the $60,000 suit for alleged slander filed by F. F. Jones against Detective J. N. Wilkerson of Kansas City, and now on trial in the Montgomery county district court.

Mrs. Thompkins dealt with a meeting said to have been held in a slaughter house near Villisca prior to the murder of 1912 of the Moore family and at which it was asserted the murder was planned. On cross examination Mrs. Thompkins refused to identify a picture as "the elderly man with whiskers" whom she had said she had seen in the slaughter house. On direct examination Mrs. Thompkins had been shown Senator Jones' picture and asserted that she "thought the picture looked like the man she had seen at the slaughter house."

DISCUSS IMMIGRANT

REV. COX TELLS REASONS FOR CHRISTIANIZING FOREIGNER.

ACT IN SELF DEFENSE

Minister Says That Unless We Cannot, Then They Will Paganize Us.

Last night's Home Mission Week services were attended by a large crowd. Miss Peters of the Normal school very effectively sang "Be Merciful to Me," by Adams, and the Rev. Gilbert S. Cox gave an address on "Christianizing the Immigrant," giving the two particular reasons for the challenge of the immigrant to the church. Mr. Cox said in part:

"The immigrant has been coming to America at the rate of two a minute for the last ten years. He has overflowed into the United States until in thirty-five of the states there are newspapers in foreign languages. He has taken possession of the labor of the land in mining, lumber camps and manufacturing, besides railroad and other constructive enterprises.

"Ninety-four of every 100 men engaged in making clothing, eighty-one in construction work, eighty-nine in mining, and ninety-three in sugar refining are either foreign born or of foreign parentage.

"Fifty-seven of every 100 children in public schools, and sixty-three from every 100 in the city of Boston are either foreigners or of foreign born parents.

"These facts and many like them help us to realize that the unprecedented growth of our country is due to this invasion.

"He has come from the farms of Europe, where he has been doing out-of-door occupations. He has lived in the open and is now crowded into as close quarters as we would be were 1,000,000 persons to be gathered within the city limits of Maryville.

"He is accustomed to quiet life and is put where saloons, gambling and commercialized amusements prey upon him. If we were to place saloons in Maryville at the same rate as they are placed in some of the mining towns, we should now have forty-five saloons here.

"These things make the immigrant a problem for the greater part of which we are responsible, because America is not so much a land as an attempted realization of a political and religious ideal. We can thus see that unless we Americanize this great multitude of foreigners they will "foreignize" us. Unless we Christianize them they will paganize us.

"The second reason that we must make this movement is: There were before the war, and will be at the close of the war, many of the immigrants who will be returning to all parts of the world. These people are either going to carry a missionary message for a Christian country or to reject our boasted claims to the name of Christian because we do not make good at home.

"The greatest hindrance to a Christianized world is an un-Christian homeland. These 300,000 unpaid, untrained missionaries will do more in a year than our handful of world evangelists can do in ten to bring the reign of the Kingdom of God."

Tonight's subject will be "Christianizing the Social World."

HOLIDAY BUYING

TRADE WEEK WILL BE TIME FOR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

MERCHANTS SIGN UP

E. M. Claypool Getting Dealers to Sign Agreement to Insure Co-Operation in Fare Refund.

"Do your Christmas shopping early" will be the cry of the merchants of Maryville as soon as the Thanksgiving festivities are over. And in order that the shoppers may have the advantage of early Christmas bargains, every merchant in Maryville is going to join in on the trade week proposition, December 2 to 9.

Anyone who is inclined to put off his Christmas purchasing until the last minute is usually dissatisfied with what he buys, and as a consequence blames the merchant. This year, however, any customer who doesn't have gifts for the whole family after December 9 will have entirely overlooked the advantages of trade week.

Trade week, as a clearing house for Christmas week purchases, has three things to recommend it. In the first place, there is the fare refund. Any merchant who gets in on the trade week proposition will be glad to mark the amount of your purchases on your card, and then when you take the card to the Commercial club office you will receive rebate on the goods that you have purchased.

Next you will have the advantage of having your choice of all of the Christmas goods. Annabel's doll and father's gloves will be the finest that the store offers for the amount expended.

The third inducement for Christmas shopping during trade week is the plea of the merchants who will offer special bargains and see that their displays are just as complete and up to the minute as they will be at any time during the holiday season. Besides, you will be better satisfied and escape that case of "nerves" that you feel coming on the week after Christmas, due to the nerve-racking ordeal of finding some gift to suit each member of the family at the last minute.

The members of the board of the Commercial club have set their seal of approval on trade week, and today E. M. Claypool, secretary, is out with the written agreement which the merchants will sign in order to insure their co-operation from December 2 to 9.

LECTURE SERIES

J. KELLY WRIGHT TO TALK TO NODAWAY FARMERS.

ADDRESS CHILDREN, TOO

Illustrated Address at Monastery at Conception Thursday Evening—Other Lectures Planned.

J. Kelly Wright of the state board of agriculture will hold farmers' meetings and deliver lectures in Nodaway county, Nov. 23, 24 and 25.

Mr. Wright has lectured in this county in past years and the people are so unanimously interested in his work that it is impossible for him to respond to all requests. We hope, however, to have him with us again later in the year for institutes in other localities.

On Thursday, Nov. 23, in the forenoon, Mr. Wright will give a lecture at the St. Mary's school, taught by Sr. M. Maura, the subject to be selected by Mr. Wright, and those in charge.

At the Green Valley school, taught by Miss Louise McCann, there will be a corn exhibit and farmers' meeting all day Thursday. Prof. Belting of the State Normal school will judge corn and talk to the people in the morning. In the afternoon Mr. Wright will give another of his good lectures at this school.

He will give his famous "Missouri," with 150 beautifully colored lantern slides, at 8 p. m. Thursday evening, in the auditorium of the monastery at Conception. Mr. Wright will be the guest of the Rev. Fr. Placidus while at the monastery.

Mr. Wright will hold a farmers' institute at Parnell on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 24 and 25. The plans for this meeting have been in charge of Prof. W. A. Power of the Parnell schools. On Friday Mr. Wright will give two lectures, "Pork Production" and "Missouri." "Stock Judging Demonstration" and "Main Strength, Elbow Grease and Arkwardness—Some Whys They Never Answered" will be the subjects for Saturday.

The people of these communities are always interested in progressive movements, and these lectures and practical helps will assist them in their desire for improvement. The state board furnishes the talent for these meetings and they come without cost to the people. All that is asked of them is to advertise, boost for a big crowd, and contribute their share in making the meeting a success.

ZOELLNER QUARTET

SECOND LYCEUM NUMBER TO BE GIVEN FRIDAY NIGHT.

OFFER PROGRAM NOVELTY

Family Noted for Perfection of Choice in Recital Numbers—Large Audiences Everywhere.

Friday evening musical Maryville will have an opportunity to hear the second number presented by the Maryville Lyceum association, when the Zoellner string quartet appears at the Christian church.

This quartet is recognized as one of the great string quartets of the world, and the European success of this superb organization is being duplicated in America. The first violin part is played by Miss Antoinette Zoellner, and the other instruments in turn are played by Amandus Zoellner, second violin; the father, Joseph Zoellner, Sr., viola, and Joseph Zoellner, Jr., cello, making a most remarkable combination of talent by the same family.

The playing of the Zoellners is remarkable for a lofty adherence to classic traditions, a keen sense of proportion and a refreshing spontaneity of effort. All these are combined to produce a flawless ensemble, together with exquisite shading and a tonal beauty which characterizes musical production of the highest sort.

To the discriminating mind the chamber music concert, especially the string quartet, appeals as the very highest music, for through the string quartet one meets face to face the spirit of music at its inmost shrine.

The Zoellners are noted for the interesting new novelties that they bring out each season. These new works have always proved of worth and interest.

In the matter of "building up" a program they have also reached perfection, for, as one critic said in his criticism of the Zoellner quartet, "their program was a gem of the program maker's art," and this opinion is always verified by their audiences.

The annual New York, Boston, etc., recitals of the Zoellner quartet are now looked forward to as events of the musical season, and in each succeeding appearance the critics have discovered new beauties in the playing of remarkable artists. Nothing perhaps speaks more eloquently for the definite growth of musical taste in America that the almost instant success that has come to the Zoellner quartet.

Lawyers, 16; farmers, 7; real estate agents and dealers, 3; bankers, 3; druggists, jewelry merchants, insurance agents, clerks and contractors, 1 each.

Striking First

By ELINOR MARSH

Tom Barnes received a note from his fiancee, Lucy Edmonds, asking him to call upon her. There was nothing in the note except the bare request, and instead of being signed "your loving Lucy" it was simply "Lucy." Tom had noticed a coolness of late on the part of his fiancee's parents and had a foreboding that he was summoned to receive a dismissal. He took time enough before answering the summons to prepare himself for the ordeal. After much thought he resolved that if he must be stabbed he would stab first. The principle of the superiority of an initial force is as true in the game of love as in war. So on meeting Lucy, without giving her time to say a word he spoke himself:

"Well, who is the party who is to take my place?"

"That's very unkind."

"What's unkind, throwing me over? Would you have written me that cold blooded note for [illegible] other purpose?"

"Worse and worse. Cold blooded note! What was there cold blooded about it?"

"Let us not waste words. Since I know why you have sent for me, you need not explain. I come, firstly, in obedience to your summons; secondly for a purpose of my own."

Tom's assuming the upper hand in the matter had its effect on Lucy. What she had to say to him was really from her mother, not from herself.

"What is it?" she asked in a low voice, in which there was a suspicion of tremolo.

"To ask the question I propounded when I entered. Who is the party that is to take my place?"

Lucy made no reply for awhile. She sat with her eyes cast down to the betrothal ring which Tom had given her. It was on the third finger of her left hand, and she was turning it as though it troubled her. Thoughts, regrets, duty, indecision were coursing through her brain like water through a flume.

"I've asked you a simple question," Tom added. "It calls only for a simple answer."

Mrs. Edmonds, who had worked her daughter up to do her bidding, had foreseen that if Lucy gave the name of the new suitor Tom would probably riddle him and thus undo all that had been done, so she had enjoined upon her child that if Tom suspected he was thrown over for another he was not to be told who that other was.

"Mother has very justly said that you would naturally be prejudiced"—

"I did not ask what mother says. I asked you for the name of the man who is to take my place."

Whether it was through obedience or that Lucy shrank from an admission that he had been supplanted, she could not bring herself to make it. After trying various methods to get it out of her Tom wrote a dozen names on a slip of paper, showed them to her and asked her if the name of the other man was among them. Lucy ran down the list till she came to Legrand Atwood, when the expression changed. Tom's eyes were fixed upon her, and he saw that he had got the secret.

"That'll do," he said, tearing up the paper. "This name has been concealed from me by your mother's orders because she does not consider me a proper person to criticise the man she approves instead of me. I will not honor the party by considering him a rival for your love. But your mother is right in assuming that from my past position toward you I am not a competent witness against a man who has downed me. I have but one request to make of you."

"What is it?" said Lucy in an almost inaudible voice.

"That you take no definite action with regard to Mr. Atwood for one month from today."

Lucy made the desired promise, and Tom's manner changed toward her at once. When he left her he assumed none of a lover's privileges, simply pressing her hand. Lucy begged him to tell her how he had hit on Mr. Atwood. She had met him during a visit to another city and was not aware that Tom had ever heard of him. Tom declined for the present to gratify her curiosity.

Lucy pined for Tom for two weeks, when the status was suddenly changed. Mr. Atwood was arrested for misuse of the mails, the charge being that he had sent circulars and received moneys for investments in a fictitious company.

Lucy at once sent for Tom. This time her note began, "Dearest Tom," and ended, "Your loving Lucy." Tom answered the summons at once.

"Did you know anything about this"—She hesitated.

"Rascal!" supplied Tom. "I did. I heard through a chum of mine that during your visit to A. he was endeavoring to be attentive to you; that he was lavish in his expenditures and was under suspicion. When I parted from you recently I made inquiries and found that several persons whom he had swindled were getting after him. I then simply waited for what has occurred."

"It was very unkind of you not to tell me of your suspicions," said Lucy, pouting.

"You mean that it was unkind of me not to tell your mother of them through you," was the smiling reply.

That was the end of the opposition to Tom as a husband for Lucy [illegible] they were married.

The Eurekan Literary Society will stage a mock trial in assembly Thursday morning. Certain gentlemen are charged with conspiring to defraud the spinsters of husbands. The question will be fought from a moral point of view.

Chief Justice White will sit in judgment. Sheriff Baker will have charge of the prisoner. Clerk Hicks will dope out the cut and dried law. C. H. and Ross McReynolds will prosecute, while Don Roberts and Eugene Bird will defend the prisoner.

The second string men of the football squad will leave Friday for Lamoni, Iowa, where they will meet the Graceland College eleven Friday afternoon. If the weather permits the men will go by auto. Coach Palfreyman will accompany the team, to carry back the large score. Here's hoping they make a good record, and we have reasons to believe they will. If they do, then they will defeat the first team in practice next Monday. Coach Belting properly deserves to make the trip as he is one of the second string men in practice, but he might scare Graceland out of the score. With Prof. Belting in the backfield of the second team, on a center rush the second line fears more from behind than from in front. It's get run over if you do, and run over if you don't. So here's to the scrubs!

Dr. Johnson's Cudgel.

The reign of George II. was a great fighting time. Every man who went abroad knew that he might have to fight to defend himself against footpad or bully. Most men carried a stout stick. When Dr. Johnson heard that a man had threatened to horsewhip him he ordered a thick cudgel and was easy in his mind. There were no police, and therefore a man had to fight.

RHEUMATISM AFTER HIS DAY'S OUTING

Hunting Trip On a Wet Day Brings Painful Results.

Once upon a time Charles Mullen of Philadelphia went gunning. It was a dismal rainy day, and long exposure to cold and wet brought on a severe attack of rheumatism. He was confined to his home.

A friend recommended Sloan's Liniment, citing his own case as evidence of its effectiveness. Mullen bought a bottle and applied it to his aching limbs. Soon improvement was noticed and he was able to return to business.

Mr. Mullen writes: "Since that experience I have never been without Sloan's Liniment in the medicine chest." You will find it soothes bruises, sprains, neuralgia, in fact all external pains. At all druggists, 25c, 50c and $1.00 a bottle.

THEY ARE FINE PARTNERS

E. Ogden and Son, Nodaway County Shorthorn Breeders, Are Good Examples of Partnership.

The Missouri Ruralist, in writing of the practical advantages of father-and-son partnerships have seen fit to use residents of Nodaway county as examples of the success of such an arrangement. From this month's issue the following is taken:

"The practical advantages of father-and son partnerships seldom find better illustration than in the case of E. Ogden & Son, our Nodaway county Shorthorn breeders. Starting with purebreds in January, 1911, these men have built up a herd which in its fifth year has been making some spectacular records. To the Central Shorthorn Breeders' association sale at Kansas City last spring they consigned 13 head which averaged $428, while one of them, the 2-year-old bull, Sultan of Orange, brought next to the top price of the entire sale—$1,010. Two months later, at private sale, they received next to the world's record price for yearling bull when they sold Village Supreme to Bellows Brothers for $5,000.

From this high-light statement of the case it would appear that the Ogdens are getting quick results; but more intimate facts tell a different story. For many years Eugene Ogden was a cattle feeder. In the school of hard knocks, narrow margins, and uncertain profits he learned lessons of thrift, close buying, consistent feeding and strict attention to all the details of care. He learned to judge keenly every animal's feeding capacity. The son, Lawrence Ogden, grew up in this practical school, received a lot of mighty valuable training and appreciated it just about as much as I and some thousands of other young men appreciate the training we received on the old home farm. He wanted something bigger and better than steer-prodding in his. He was ambitious. It was the same old story. Father and son both moved to town; one to enjoy well earned retirement, the other to seek his career.

And thus it was only the happy ending of a long story when father and son moved back again and stocked the old farm with pedigreed Shorthorns. Then it was that the father's experience and the son's ambition met on common ground. The purebred start was bought with all the insight into feeding quality that formerly was exercised in the selection of feeder stock. There was an equal insistence from the younger member of the firm upon ambitious pedigrees and correct individuality. The combined counsels of father and son insured a high aim, shrewd purchases, good care, liberal development of every individual in the herd—good management; success.

A box and pie social will be given at the Diamond Branch school, eight miles east and two miles south of Maryville, Friday night, Nov. 24 Everybody cordially invited to attend.

Thanksgiving In Venezuela.

In a big armchair in a large New York hotel sat a tall, distinguished looking man.

"This is the best Thanksgiving I ever had," he said, fairly glowing with contentment. "It makes me think in contrast of the worst I ever spent. I was in La Guayra, Venezuela, sent down by a New York newspaper to wait for a war that never happened. I was forced to spend Thursday there, and the prospect of a dinner at the hotel there was nauseating. I had been there before, and I knew the meal would be odds and ends floating in grease. With such thoughts in my mind I strolled down the main street of the town. Ahead of me I saw a man, tall, thin, unmistakably American. He went into a building. I quickened my pace and found it was the American consulate. I rapped. The gentleman opened the door himself and, seeing I was an American, asked me to come in and have Thanksgiving dinner with him.

"The man was Thomas Moffat, then consul. A box from Brooklyn contained turkey, pumpkin pie, slightly the worse for wear, to be sure, and even cranberry sauce."—New York Tribune.

Nearing the Year's Close.

A famous English novelist tells of a hillside Scotch village with no special beauty, but which once every twenty-four hours at the close of day becomes transfigured. The kirk and cot stand bathed in sunset glory. So the year's doings and happenings, though commonplace they seem, find their transfiguration. It is when toil is requited, harvests garnered and fireside reunions are enjoyed and memories record God's unfailing goodness in his house. Such transfiguration is Thanksgiving day.

KANSAS CITY STOCK LETTER.

Kansas City Stock Yards, Nov. 20.—Another big week in cattle receipts opened today with 26,000 head, market mostly steady, weak on medium and low grade stockers, pretty active on all kinds, in spite of excessive supplies at Chicago and St. Louis, with lower reports from those points. Hogs sold 5 to 10c lower early, packers demanding a greater decline late sales a compromise, sheep and lambs steady.

Beef cattle—White Face steers raised and fed in southwest Missouri set a new high record price here today at $11.75, 1,555 pounds average. Other good steers sold around $11, short fed steers $9 to $10.50. Summer grazed cattle fed thirty or sixty days are bringing $8.50 to $9.50, an agreeable surprise to owners in most cases. Western grass steers sell at $8 or better, and plain little steers weighing around 900 pounds bring $6.75 to $7.25. Cows advanced 25 cents last week, best cows up to $8, odd head of Colorado grass cows at that price, fair to good cows $6.15 to $7.25, canners $4.50 to $5.00. Canners are selling a good 50 cents higher here than at Chicago. Veals are higher, up to $11.

Stockers and feeders—Good kinds are selling about like Monday of last week. Ten cars of choice Panhandle stock calves, 400 pounds, sold at $8, and forty or fifty cars of well bred Panhandle yearlings sold at $7.25 to $7.35, with 10 per cent off the total weight at $6. Plain stock steers sell at $6.25 to $6.75, common thin steers under $6. Five cars of Kansas feeders sold at $7.50, 1,150 pounds, and 6 cars of steers a little fleshier, but ordinarily classed as feeders, sold at $7.90 to killers. A few fleshy feeders are going out up to $8.85, plain thin feeders down to $6.50.

Hogs—Order buyers bought their hogs 5 to 10c lower, paying $9.85 for heavy hogs, $9.80 for medium, $9.70 for lights. Packers stood out for prices 25c lower, but bought hogs after the noon hour 15 to 20c lower, bulk of sales $9.30 to $9.75. Receipts were 12,000. Quality has improved a good deal over two or three weeks ago. Demand has been extra strong at Kansas City, top here Friday same as top in Chicago and St. Louis, and bulk of sales above those markets, and action of packers today was an effort to establish a margin under those markets. They had poor success in doing it, top here only 10 cents under extreme top in Chicago today.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts were only 4,000, and prices were firm, top lambs $11.75, ewes $7.50. As in the hog market local prices are leading all the other markets, the result of light supplies here and a good demand, lambs Friday at $11.85, top at Chicago same day $11.60, Omaha and St. Joseph same day $11.50. Short fed lambs are making good money for feeders. Feeding lambs are 25 to 50 cents higher at $9.75 to $10.25.
